Suspects Hunted After U.N. 'Shelling'

IN WAKE OF BAZOOKA SHOT. Police look into an army-type mortar in Queens parking lot with which a shot is believed to have been fired at U.N. headquarters in New York Friday while Cuba's Ernesto Guevara was addressing the General Assembly. The mortar is still aimed at the U.N. building (background). The shot fell about 100 feet short, but the explosion jarred the building. (UPI Telephoto)

NEW YORK (AP) — Police pushed a massive hunt among the city's many Cuban exile groups today in hopes of turning up the persons responsible for firing a bazooka shell at the United Nations Building.

The shot fell short of its mark and exploded harmlessly in the East River Friday.

The FBI assigned a sizable force to the case. The Central Intelligence Agency and the intelligence services of the Army, Navy and Air Force also reportedly were in on the hunt.

Police Commissioner Michael J. Murphy assured Mayor Robert F. Wagner of an "intense police department investigation to seek out and apprehend the perpetrators." The mayor relayed the promise to Adlai Stevenson, U.S. ambassador at the U.N.

The bazooka firing, which may have been the work of anti-Castroites, came as a Cuban minister was addressing delegates inside the U.N. Building.

An instant later, from a crowd of some 50 anti-Castro pickets in front of the U.N., a woman brandishing a hunting knife sprang toward the building, bent on assassinating the Cuban minister, Ernesto Guevara. She was subdued by police.

Guevara reacted coolly when he learned he had been her target. He said he forgave her, adding: "It is better to be killed by a woman with a knife than by a man with a gun."

Four hours after the bazooka shot, two men broke from the picket line and cut the rope on the Russian flagpole, sending the Soviet emblem falling to the ground. The two were arrested.

The bazooka was found on a Queens pier, a paper Cuban flag pasted on it. The shell was lobbed about 850 yards before it fell into the water about 100 yards from the Manhattan shore and the U.N. Building.

The blast sent up a 15-foot geyser witnessed by some U.N. observers in the building and by boatmen on the river.

The General Assembly session, which Guevara had been addressing at the time, went on undisturbed by the muffled roar outside.

In Miami, a Cuban exile source who declined use of his name said the bazooka firing was the work of an anti-Castro group called "the Black Front." He said he was a member of the group, that the shot was directed at Guevara and was "a Christmas present to the enslaved Cuban people."

Guevara, minister of industry and No. 2 man on the Communist island ruled by Fidel Castro, strolled later through the delegates' lounge wearing his green fatigue uniform with polished boots.

Police and U.N. guards had begun searching the midtown world organization headquarters before dawn after a 6:45 a.m. FBI tip of some planned "bomb activity."

At 10:37 a.m., a man with a Spanish accent phoned police:

"I have put a bomb in front of the U.N. Building. Keep people away between 11:30 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. Long live Cuba!"

At 12:10 p.m. the four-foot-long bazooka — which fires an 18-inch-long rocket containing high explosives — sent its missile whistling across the river. Police said it had a range of 900 yards — about the distance to the building.

It was the second time an explosive device had been directed at the United Nations. On July 22, 1948, a light plane dropped a home-made bomb on U.N. headquarters, then at Lake Success, Long Island, but it exploded harmlessly about 100 feet above the structure. The pilot, when arrested, termed the bombing a peace demonstration.

Burch Seen On Way Out By Romney

Chairman Prepares Plea To Republican National Committee

WASHINGTON (AP) — Michigan Gov. George Romney predicts Dean Burch is on the way out, but the embattled national chairman is preparing his plea to Republican National Committee members to keep him in the $30,000-a-year post.

Romney conferred Friday with both former President Dwight D. Eisenhower and with Burch but declined to say what was discussed at either meeting. He had breakfast with Eisenhower at an undisclosed location and met in late afternoon with Burch at GOP headquarters here.

At a capitol news conference, Romney said he is more certain than ever Burch will be ousted when the question comes up at the national committee meeting Jan. 22-23 in Chicago.

Burch's letter, giving his views on party issues and the reasons why he feels he should be retained as national chairman, is expected to be mailed Monday to the 132 members of the committee.

An Associated Press survey of the committee showed Friday that most members were waiting to hear what Burch had to say before committing themselves on whether they would favor his retention.

Romney, at his news conference, referred to the statement issued last weekend by 18 GOP governors and governors-elect after a meeting in Denver. It called for major changes in the national committee.

"We need a chairman who is objective, and who makes the party inclusive rather than exclusive," he said. "This calls for a change as the governors meeting indicated."

First Absentee Ballots Issued For Levy Vote

The first three absentee ballots have been issued for the special election Jan. 5 in Beaver Local School District on a 54-mill operating levy, the County Election Board said today.

As in general and primary elections, the civilian absentee ballots are available for qualified electors who will be unavoidably absent from Columbiana County and at least 10 miles from their home precinct on election day. Ballots also will be available for the disabled—those unable to get to the polls because of illness or infirmity—and for service personnel and their spouses.

The deadline for issuance of the civilian ballots will fall at 4 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 31. To be counted at the polls, they must be back in the board's office by noon Jan. 1.

Buddhists Fast, Pray

Threaten More Suicides In Bid To Oust Viet Premier

SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP) — Vietnamese Buddhist leaders embarked today on a weekend of fasting and praying and threatened a renewal of suicides in their drive to topple the harassed government of Premier Tran Van Huong.

Saigon Buddhist headquarters told of a multi-pronged anti-government campaign on the heels of the Huong regime's announcement that more United States aid would be pouring in to help South Viet Nam's armed forces and economy in the anti-Communist war.

These developments marked the end of two weeks of relative calm in the capital and the beginning of the Buddhist campaign.

I. Buddhist Monk Thich Tinh Khiet, nominal over-lal leader of the Buddhists, and several ranking aides said they would conduct a 48-hour hunger strike.

2. Buddhist headquarters opened for a continuous round of prayers for the government's overthrow.

3. The main Buddhist school in Saigon issued a pamphlet today condemning British Ambassador Gordon Etherington-Smith for his Dec. 3 speech at his home, praising Huong, who was the guest of honor.

4. Monks in Darlac Province, 160 miles northeast of Saigon, said they were awaiting orders from Saigon to begin protest suicides against the government such as the series of fiery self-sacrifices which last year helped bring down the Ngo Dinh Diem regime.

Originally, Buddhist leaders supported Huong but objected to several members of his cabinet on grounds that they had been affiliated with the Diem regime.

Huong refused to reshuffle the cabinet and the Buddhist leaders turned their attacks on Huong himself. They have made it clear they would settle for nothing less than veto power over the appointments of any ranking official in Viet Nam.

Vietnamese and American officials say Viet Cong agents have infiltrated the Buddhist groups, seeking to turn national rule into chaos.

The Buddhist hierarchy, in a letter to U.S. Ambassador Maxwell D. Taylor, called on the United States for support in a campaign to oust Huong's regime.

But the Huong government Friday issued a communique announcing the American agreement for a step-up in assistance.

Good Will Finds It Rough In Political Skirmishing

By WILLIAM S. VANCE

Review Staff Correspondent COLUMBUS, Ohio — The old gray Statehouse stands resplendent in Yuletide finery.

After dark its dome and massive Doric columns are bathed in soft blue light.

A huge, gaily decorated Christmas tree towers in the center of the rotunda.

Wreaths, ribbons and miniature trees herald the holiday season in most offices.

Mask For Turbulence

All the trimmings are here but they mask a turbulence elsewhere in the statehouse, notably the northeast corner of the second floor where the Ohio Senate holds forth.

There the atmosphere is anything but festive.

For in the fifth week of this special session of the 105th General Assembly, political skirmishing, bitterness and belligerence diminished whatever feeling of good will senators might be expected to have at this time of year.

Tension has been mounting in the politically volatile upper house which, with the passing of 1964, will become evenly divided between Republicans and Democrats.

Standoff Stirs Activity This potential 16-16 standoff on legislation has provided most of the abrasive ingredients in the dying days of the Republican-controlled Senate.

Because Democrats will have a much stronger bargaining position in the session starting Jan. 4, Republican Gov. James A. Rhodes loaded the current agenda with a number of major proposals and several minor items he is unwilling to risk to the uncertainties of 1965.

As they did during the regular session in 1963, Republicans have responded with little objection to the governor's bidding.

But the way the majority has exercised its power has incensed

Democrats. The minority is snapping off charges of "railroading" and "ramrodding," while Republicans reply with complaints of "obstructionist tactics" by the Democrats.

Leaders' Rift Widens

The widening rift has had a marked effect on the leadership. Majority Leader C. Stanley Machem, R-Nelsonville, and Minority Leader Frank King, D-Toledo, are old political foes but always have had more than grudging admiration for each other — until now.

Mechem came back for this special session with some understandable resentment toward King. As president of the Ohio AFL-CIO, King was influential in swinging a labor vote in Mechem's district which helped to cost the majority leader his political job.

Mechem's Senate seat will be occupied by Charles Pancake of (Turn to ASSEMBLY, Page 3)

2 At Aliquippa Bars Cited In Gaming Raid

BEAVER — Officers of the Chippewa barracks of the Pennsylvania State Police charged two Beaver County men with establishing a gambling place and common gambling following raids at two Aliquippa bars early Friday afternoon.

Sam Pangas, 67, of Aliquippa and Ferdinand A. Leach, 36, of Ambridge were cited at the Famous Bar and Dolly's Bar.

They posted bonds for a hearing later before Justice of the Peace Milton Richeal of West Mayfield.

Police confiscated a bingo-type pinball machine, which awarded free games, at each establishment.

Bandits Raid School And Attack Nun

ELISABETHVILLE, the Congo (AP) — Bandits attacked the Roman Catholic convent school at Luisha, during the night and raped a nun, officials of the Belgian mining concern Union Miniere reported today.

The officials said the nun was taken away from the school, 50 miles north of here, but returned later.

The school is considered one of the most modern and largest boarding schools for girls in Africa. It was donated by a former Union Miniere director.

Refugees reaching Leopoldville reported Friday that a Catholic nun from Bellmore, Long Island, N.Y., had been raped and beaten to death by Congolese rebels at Isangi, 120 miles north of Stanleyville.

She was Sister Anna Donniacuo who had taken the name of Sister Marie Antoinette.

Three Canadian nuns who were freed by Congolese government soldiers brought the report to Leopoldville. They were also raped and beaten.

A Belgian nun and a Dutch priest were also killed by the rebels at Isangi, they said.

Nine other Europeans were killed at Mungbere, about 70 miles east of Paulis, about 70 miles north of Stanleyville.

The reports brought the known death toll of Europeans in the Congo rebellion to 120.

McNamara Plans Given On Changes

To Carve Up OAR And Insert Pieces In National Guard

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara announced plans today to wipe out all Army Reserve units and merge some with the National Guard. He said this will bring the Reserve-Guard system "into balance with the contingency war plans."

He told a news conference this "means there will be no more units in the Reserve," although individuals who are not in units transferred to the Guard will still be available for callup.

He said he had instructed Secretary of the Army Stephen Ailes to prepare plans for re-aligning the Reserve and Guard forces "to improve significantly the early deployment capability and combat readiness of the United States Reserve forces."

He estimated this latest reorganization would result in savings of about $150 million per year.

"The realignment program," McNamara said, "will involve the transfer of the unit structure of the Army Reserve into the National Guard, and the elimination of all units for which there is no military requirement."

"The Army Reserve will consist of individuals rather than units and will provide individual trainees for summer camp and mobilization."

"Under the plan, the paid drill strength will be 550,000 well-equipped, well-trained officers and men."

Child On School Bus Killed In Collision

NEW CASTLE — A 9-year-old boy was killed and 20 schoolmates and driver were injured when their school bus was struck by an auto carrier on Route 224, eight miles west of here, Friday morning.

The victim was John Hvizdek, who was pronounced dead at St. Francis Hospital.

Six of the injured, including the bus driver, were admitted to Jameson Memorial Hospital.

Pennsylvania State Police said the trucker, Bert Carpenter of Flint, Mich., will be charged with involuntary manslaughter. The truck apparently crossed over the center line and struck the school bus, about two miles from its destination, causing it to overturn.

Carpenter's bond was set at $3,000 for a coroner's inquest.

Treatment Of Mentally Ill Discussed By Lions' Guest

A brief history and development of the treatment of the emotionally and mentally ill was presented by Dr. Nissem Binado, Steubenville psychiatrist, at the meeting of the Lions Club Friday afternoon at the Travelers Hotel.

The Austrian - born physician pointed out people always have suffered from mental illness and there always have been some persons who pleaded for better understanding of those afflicted.

In early days, many thought those mentally ill were possessed by the devil and they were kept in chains. "At best, they were neglected," he said.

Dr. Binado said a book, "The Mind That Found Itself," by Clifford Beers written in 1908 after the author's release following seven years in a mental hospital has long been considered authoritative in the field.

He described briefly some of the treatment and discussed drug therapy whereby many are able to follow their daily routine.

The use of drugs is reducing significantly the number of persons in public and private psychiatric hospitals, Dr. Binado said.

He also spoke on child psychiatry, pointing out there are no problem children. "The problems lie with the parents," the Steubenville physician said.

Dr. Binado explained children have many inner stresses while growing up and the parents often exert outside stresses which the child cannot stand.

"I always ask, 'Do you want average, healthy children or Einsteins in mental hospitals?'" Dr. Binado declared.

Dr. Binado recently was approved by the City Hospital staff for consultation.

He was introduced by Dr. John A. Fraser, program chairman.

George McCullough, chairman, reported arrangements have been completed for the annual Christmas party for needy children next Friday when Santa will distribute gifts and treats.

Richard C. Martin, president, reminded members no Friday luncheons will be held after the Christmas party until Jan. 8 because of the holidays.

However, the Board of Directors will meet Monday, Jan. 4, at 8 p. m. at the Potters Savings & Loan Co. annex.

Run-In On Floor

Beyond that, the two had a run-in on the Senate floor during the week which, from all appearances, has cooled whatever friendship was left.

It happened after the Rules Committee brought the House-passed reapportionment proposal to the floor last Monday.

King, who serves on that committee with Mechem, complained that the action was taken by Republicans on the committee without consulting the Democratic members.

Mechem replied that there had been informal agreement on the floor to put the resolution on the calendar. King argued that if there had been any agreement it was that the issue would not be on Monday's calendar.

Makes Implication

He implied the Republicans were trying to catch the minority off guard and ill prepared to defend their position against the resolution.

Mechem retorted sharply that King was "trying to waste time on peanuts."

Since then there has been little contact between the two. King tried to talk to Mechem after the episode, was told the majority leader was "tied up" and ended up phoning him from his own office a few feet down the hall.

Democrats have taken the position that if Republicans want cooperation they should treat the minority fairly. Republicans are convinced the minority isn't going to play ball anyway and, after all, with a 20-13 edge, who needs them?

Needed For Emergency

When they hold together, Republicans have enough votes now to pass a bill (17) and enough to put a Constitutional question on the ballot (20), but need 2 Democratic votes to pass a bill as an emergency or to suspend Senate rules.

Republicans wanted to suspend one rule to speed up the session—a rule which requires all legislation to remain in the Rules Committee one legislative day after it comes over from the House or after it is passed out by a Senate committee.

King told reporters he had agreed to vote for suspension of the rules on measures the Democrats considered worthwhile. But he said Mechem hasn't asked him recently "and I doubt very much that he will now."

And so it goes in a cheerless special session preview of what Ohioans can expect when 16 Republicans and 16 Democrats move into the northeast corner of the Statehouse second floor next month.

HOLIDAYS AT HOME

The song goes, "there's no place like home for the holidays", and we certainly agree. But home is not just a wonderful place for the holidays... it's a great place to be all year. Simple or luxurious... whatever it is, it's the greatest place on earth and the people who make up the family are the most important. The comfort, the safety and the well-being of the "folks" is our greatest responsibility.

Cleanliness Is Neatness

Housewives everywhere are sprucing up the premises in preparation for festive holiday parties and home entertaining. Please don't let a rat or roach spoil an otherwise very pleasant season. Left uncontrolled, these worrisome, obnoxious pests can endanger the health of everyone subjected to them. Would you want to drink from a glass that might have been the recent resting place of a roach? No? Well, neither would you your guest!

WHAT TO DO?

If you are like most housewives, you certainly have enough to do in handling the normal family household chores without the added task of being your own pest control operator. Besides, there are do-it-yourself chemicals now on the market that can be dangerous if you are not familiar with the correct use procedures. Why do it the hard way? By the time you buy the chemicals and the equipment, you can pay for professional service... service you know is right, safe and efficient.

Mt. Union Hall Is Named After Leetonia Native

Mt. Union College's new residence hall for men has been named for B. Y. McCready of Alliance, a trustee for 18 years and board chairman of the McConnell Agency at Alliance, and a native of Columbiana County.

McCready Hall will house 124 men when completed next fall.

The trustees' executive committee announced the name for the three - story structure, being built with a $450,000 Federal Housing and Home Finance Agency loan.

Born in Leetonia, McCready attended Western Reserve University, was graduated from Mt. Union in 1916 and later attended MIT.

McCready was president of the Mt. Union College Alumni Association in 1927-34 and instrumental in establishing the Loyalty Fund, the annual alumni giving program.

He served as chairman of the important Alliance phase of the "Second Century" campaign in the late 1940's which enabled Mt. Union to take the needed steps toward recovery after the war.

His mother, who once served as a women's residence hall housemother, attended Mt. Union as did his sister and wife. The Class of 1946 included his daughter, son, and daughter-in-law.

He served in the Marine Corps Flying Corps in World War I and taught school in Ravenna before joining the McConnell Agency in 1920.

House Divided Against Itself?

The question whether the men arrested in Mississippi in connection with the slaying of three civil rights workers are guilty is of no immediate concern to them and many of their fellow Mississippians.

They have been freed of the charges in a fast shuffle of legality.

Later, if a federal grand jury comprised of fellow Mississippians proves equally reluctant to get at the truth of last summer's civil rights murders, the suspects stand every good prospect of going free.

The question of their complicity in a crime that shocked the country and led to a direct confrontation of Mississippi "justice" by the Federal Bureau of Investigation has been twisted into a scuffle over legal technicalities.

The very fact FBI agents entered the state to try to bring justice to bear where there was no local will to do anything is regarded by Mississippians as a more heinous crime than homicide.

"If a house be divided against itself, that house cannot stand."

How long can some areas in some states of this Union persist in enforcing two standards of citizenship—one for the local in-group, another for the out-group?

How will the United States ultimately cope with the irreconcilability of those Southerners who will not yield their position on states' rights—who have gone beyond the technical issue and made the commission of violent crime, itself, a state's right?

The Constitution of the United States applies to all citizens. No exceptions are made for Negroes, students from other parts of the country, or Jews from New York City.

Tragically, no one is incredulous because of what has happened in Mississippi.

No one really expected anything except the ultimate release of the defendants in the Mississippi civil rights case. Mississippi lives outside the law in these matters.

Break Seen In U.S. Duel With Reds

By Victor Riesel

For 14 years the Justice Department's Internal Security Division has dueling futilely with the Communist party U.S.A. in the federal courts. And for 14 years the U.S. government has failed to force the party to obey the law and register as a Communist action group dominated by the Soviet Union.

Victor Riesel

Department attorneys, grayling on the case, are determined to battle right through the space age. This is not motivated by a compulsion for either persecution or prosecution. The challenge is great, the prize greater.

If the Communist party is eventually ordered by the courts to sign registration certificates, it will have to reveal secrets kept since Leon Trotsky left his Bronx tailor shop to organize the triumphant Red Army.

The question of just how much the Soviet Union has interfered and intervened in America's social and political life will be answered.

THE LAW says that the party must register its name, officers and property. It must file a list of its members. It must put on record the names and addresses of all the printing plants it owns, all the publications it issues and controls. It must list its assets, its cash and the source of its funds.

It must label as Communist literature the publications it controls and dominates. It must file the list of fronts and will not be able to camouflage its "innocent" operations in the guise of decent sounding causes.

Since it will have to file not only a list of its members but their addresses as well, the party's 10,000 hard core people will not be able to hide behind aliases.

It will be able to function. That right is not denied. But it will have to function in the open.

Then the leaders of many causes will know exactly who is offering them aid, money, literature, and demonstrators—and whether those who have infiltrated legitimate organizations are acting on their own inspiration or on orders from the special American Section of the Soviet Union's Communist Party Central Committee.

THE U.S. government fight to force such registration began 14 years ago—but after well over a decade of frustration it now appears to have a chance to win.

Weirdly enough, this chance springs from the Supreme Soviet itself, which has just buried N. S. Khrushchev politically. That interment, which leaves the former chairman officially neither red nor dead, may provide just what the U.S. Justice Department needs.

But before spelling out what is needed, it is vital to go back over the case of the U.S. vs. the Communist party, U.S.A.

On June 5, 1961, after 10½ years of legal battling, the government was supported by the Supreme Court. The Internal Security Act of 1950 was declared constitutional. The Communist party therefore had to register with the attorney general as a Communist action organization. The party refused.

A federal court at Washington indicted it on 12 counts. It was convicted Dec. 17, 1962. It was ordered to pay a fine of $120,000. The party refused.

IT APPEALED to the Court of Appeals at Washington. On Dec. 17, 1963, this court upheld the Communist party. It ruled that the party, through its leaders, could not be forced to register because such action would incriminate the officials. Neither could the government, under this ruling, force the party membership to register themselves, and neither could any member be forced to act as an agent of the party and register it.

Furthermore, said the Court of Appeals, it was up to the government to find a volunteer among the Communist party's leaders or membership who would be willing to register the party if the Justice Department was still interested. The Supreme Court refused to review the case.

Thus the government was put in the strange position of seeking a Communist party leader or member to help expose his own organization. It was all very futile until N. S. Khrushchev was toppled.

Many of Khrushchev's supporters inside the Communist party U.S.A. are bitter, angry, and believe themselves betrayed. Some are among the party's top leadership.

The Justice Department hopes that one of Khrushchev's supporters will walk into the attorney general's office to offer to register the party, as is his right under the law.

If there is no such break, the Internal Security Division will go back into a federal court and start the case all over again. It believes it is entitled to at least as much consideration under the law as the Communist party.

Down Through The Years

Louise Kennedy, Jane Porter, Kathleen Ellis, Maxine Erdmer and Grace Cumberly, all members of the Wells High School Girls' Glee Club of Newell, comprised the cast of the group's play, "Speaking To Father."

TWENTY YEARS AGO—East Liverpool reeled under a 12-inch snow as one of the worst December storms since 1917 paralyzed the district.

Homer D. Rutledge of St. George St. was promoted to corporal at the Quantico (Va.)

Army intelligence headquarters. Mrs. Mary Orin was re-elected commander of the East Liverpool Navy Mothers Club.

U.S. Jobs Go Begging

By Douglas Kiker

Johnson Has Trouble With Vacancies

President Johnson is having a lot of trouble—much of it not of his own making—in filling job vacancies in his new administration, and the problem is causing him increasing concern.

As more and more men brought to Washington by John F. Kennedy leave in the months immediately ahead the problem is expected to become even more acute.

The President is fully aware of this. He doesn't like the fact subjected to publicity. He has been making a big effort behind the scenes to alleviate the problem. But, as one good White House source remarked, "It still looks dismal at the moment."

John Macy, head of the U.S. Civil Service, is running the talent search for the Johnson administration, and he is going about it armed with the full authority and prestige of the President.

SOURCES SAY that Mr. Johnson is allowing the Democratic National Committee to fill some middle-level administration jobs, but none of the top posts. Macy picks the men for those.

In choosing the Civil Service chief to head his talent search, the President seems to have done so partly in an effort to lend a non-partisan atmosphere to the effort.

But it's also a fact that Macy is considered one of the very best examples of a career government employee of great ability and capacity.

What's the trouble? Why can't the President find the men he needs to form a viable, competent administration? There are several reasons:

The Kennedy administration took a lot of cream off the top. When Kennedy reorganized Development in 1962, for example, he fought hard to get private businesses to release some of their good men to run overseas aid programs.

Now when the Johnson administration goes back to those same companies, they complain that they have done their share.

It is difficult to persuade competent men to take these posts when you can't tell them who their superiors will be.

THERE IS going to be a considerable turnover in the Cabinet before the year is out, and although Johnson has a pretty good idea of who is going, in most instances he still does not know who will take their places.

"It's hard to build from the bottom up," one source explains, citing the difficulties in getting good second-level executives at both the Treasury and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

During this last year little was done to build up a "bank" of men on which the President could draw to fill vacancies.

Ralph Dungan, now U.S. Ambassador to Chile, was in charge of the program last year. He worked closely with Walter Jenkins, the former presidential aid, in this. But together they were kept busy just filling existing vacancies.

Competent men in private life usually must take a big cut in pay to enter government service at the time in life when they are reaping the financial rewards of long years of work.

The new government pay scales are expected to help some, in this respect. But the President knows that the government can never really compete in salary with the top business jobs.

There are smaller problems, too.

JOHNSON is finding it difficult to get the men to come to work when he needs them. They say "perhaps in a few months," or "I'll have to examine my affairs." As a result Macy's talent search has a good many potential government executives "half on the hook" today.

There is not as much interest and enthusiasm among younger people. So far, Johnson has not been able to spark their interest in government the way Kennedy did.

Because of the Walter Jenkins incident, Johnson insists today that full security checks be completed on all prospective administration members before they are hired.

He also insists that appropriate members of Congress give their full approval—at a time when Congress is not in session and its members often are difficult to contact.

Macy really doesn't have much help, so far. He is assisted only by John Clinton and Edward Sherman, who formerly worked for Dungan.

Perhaps the most pressing personnel needs at the moment exist in the new anti-poverty office. But paradoxically enough, it was Sargent Shriver, the anti-poverty chief, to whom Macy had to go to get advice in finding men for the whole executive branch. Shriver did the same job for Kennedy in 1961.

And finally, it does the administration's cause no good when members of the Johnson staff insist that no problem exists.

It does exist and Johnson is worried about it.

He is particularly baffled by the lack of volunteers from the business community, in the face of all the support he received from it in the election.

Letters To The Editor

On Nov. 17, Local Union 86 sponsored an organization meeting comprised of members from several local unions of the IBOP. We met at the W. 6th St. building at 4 p. m.

Our objects were to urge and encourage all local union members to vote in the primary and general election of executive board officers of the IBOP for a new four-year term and to discuss the problems facing us in the near future, plus several other subjects.

On Nov. 24, this group met again at 7:30 at the 6th St. headquarters. After some committees were appointed, we had several interesting discussions on a number of subjects.

James Slaven, third vice president, and C. Frank Dales, sixth vice president of the IBOP, attended this meeting. At the close of the meeting, I informed those present the next meeting would be held on Dec. 15 at the 6th St. headquarters, providing we were allowed the use of the building. Mr. Slaven remarked, "I see no reason why you shouldn't be allowed to use it."

I applied for use of the building on Dec. 3 was told to contact Mr. Wheatley. I called his home and was informed by Mr. Wheatley that we were denied the use of the building.

On what grounds Mr. Wheatley based his refusal was not made clear, unless he doesn't want us to meet together or he doesn't want the potters in the East Liverpool area to vote.

Here is just one example of Mr. Wheatley's disregard of the rights of us members. His act does not become an international union president who is supposed to be above petty acts as this one.

Brother and sister potters, there is one way we can strike back. And that is at the polls, through the ballot box at the primary election March 2 and general election May 4.

Give this some very serious thought, potters. We have two choices—break this yoke of tyranny or live under oppression another four years.

Thursday evening our dog was killed on the Calcutta - Cannons Mill Rd.

We have no idea who did this. Who ever it was wouldn't even take a few minutes of his or her time to see if there was anything that could be done for the dog. Maybe we are wrong to care so much about a dog, but he was a family pet.

When he was struck, two of our children were playing with both our dogs. The one little girl came in screaming and crying that some one had hit the dog. We hoped it would still be alive and that it wasn't serious. We know our dog should not have been on the road and it was an accident. But we feel that anyone with kindness would have stopped to see what could have been done for the pet.

Right now we are just ever so thankful that it wasn't one of our children or the neighbor children. But please who ever you are if this ever happens again stop and give aid. You would be surprised how much any family would appreciate this just to know you cared.

Action On Flood Gauge Past Due

Unless the State Highway Department's Division 11 office in New Philadelphia changes the dilatory tactics that have marked a year's negotiations with the city, East Liverpool must likely will go through another flood season without an accurate local gauge to show the height of the Ohio River.

The department advised Safety-Service Director Robert E. Vodrey Friday that its crews are so busy with "snow and ice control and related duties" that they will not have time until next spring to install an angle iron support and a plank on a Chester pier — the two principal components of the gauge.

These negotiations among city officials, the Highway Department and the Corps of Engineers at Pittsburgh have dragged on for a year and installation of the river gauge is no closer to reality now than it was 12 months ago.

The city is anxious for installation of the gauge and so is the engineer's office, which has promised to furnish the enameled figures for the gauge.

But if the Highway Department is anxious to see the job completed, that fact has not been demonstrated by its actions. It's a comparatively small task, but one that's highly important to the community. The Highway Department agreed to undertake it because the bridge is state-owned and maintained.

East Liverpool has not had a reliable flood gauge since razing of former Dam 8 near Newell when the Stratton "super dam" went into use.

In floods in the immediate past, forecasts of downriver crests were based on gauge readings at the Montgomery Dam at Ohio View — a good 10 miles upstream. Predictably, they were not highly accurate.

The Flood Forecasting Service in Pittsburgh also has pressed for installation of the gauge because it will help supply reliable data on the stream's trends in the East Liverpool area.

The city hopes the Highway Department will be able to complete the little, but important, task before the flood waters start to roll downstream early next spring.

Your Life Belongs To Daddy

A single sentence in an official communique issued in Havana a few days ago illustrates in dramatic fashion the key belief in statism.

Augusto Martinez Sanchez, one of Fidel Castro's "originals," had tried to take his own life with a gun after being dismissed as labor minister in the Castro government.

His dismissal, the communique explained, was not because of personal, moral, or revolutionary honor. It was not because his loyalty was questioned. It was only because he had been a bad administrator.

"We are deeply sorry for this event," the communique continued, "although in accordance with elemental revolutionary principles we believe this conduct by a revolutionary is unjustifiable and improper. We believe Comrade Augusto Martinez Sanchez could not have consciously committed this act, since every revolutionary knows that he does not have the right to deprive his cause of a life that does not belong to him, and that he can only sacrifice against an enemy."

This is the creed of statism.

An individual must subordinate himself in all ways and in all circumstances to the state. Only the state has inalienable rights. Only the state has dignity. Only the state has sovereignty.

And what is this all-powerful entity, the "state"? It is a group of individuals who have assumed the power to dominate the lives of other individuals.

Following The Script

If the Soviet Union claims it is shrinking its military budget, the script calls for the United States to show skepticism. Everyone knows the Soviet Union doctors its military budget and spends more than it seems to be spending.

Everyone knows comparisons between military budgets are impossible because each country has its own system of accounting.

But something else enters into this situation — military spending is continuing at a wartime rate though neither the United States nor the Soviet Union is at war.

The rate is of great concern to both governments, their allies and their potential enemies. In the United States, it is a struggle to keep the defense budget within distance of $50 billion, approximately half of all federal expenditures. The Soviet Union is hoping to keep its military spending under 13 billion rubles, about 13 per cent of its spending.

Further comparison is futile because of variances in accounting methods. The United States, for instance, says foreign aid is a supplement to military spending and helps to keep down the total cost of national defense. But foreign aid is never included in the budget for national defense.

When President Eisenhower was getting ready to leave the White House he warned that military spending had grown so massive and was so intricately tied into the total economy that it might turn into a source of policy, instead of a result of policy.

But never under any circumstances should the United States take seriously a hint from Moscow that an arms race is looked upon with anything less than universal favor in Russia, too.

It might spur on Defense Secretary McNamara to close some more military installations in his effort to hold the military budget close to $50 billion.

Do-It-Yourself Yule Trimmings

Holiday Handicraft

By CLARA HALL

Hurry up, Mom, get out the scissors, construction paper, dollies, empty plastic containers and whatnots — you only have two weeks to join the parade of homemakers who make the unusual festive trimmings which give such a lift to the Christmas spirit.

Although it is so easy to buy ready-made yuletide decorations, Christmas can have so much more meaning when the trimmings around the home show the love and time consumed in the making.

Mrs. Arlene Blackburn of Wyoming Ave. has the reputation for being a whiz at making almost anything. Of particular interest are her choir figurines and trees made from old magazines.

In forming the choir singers, she used different sizes of magazines, folding the leaves in and spraying them with paint. Styrofoam heads, doily collars and construction paper eyes and nose completed the group. The trees are made the same way, using any type of receptacle for the base. All kinds of decorations can be used to finish this unusual tree.

MRS. BLACKBURN HAS MADE beautiful topiary trees, sparkling pill containers sprinkled with sequins, colorful corsages and "snow people" from styrofoam. She added much to the parties of the past year at the Masonic Temple when she and her husband served as worthy patron and worthy matron of Crystal Chapter 18 of Eastern Star.

Christmas at the home of Mrs. Rachel Lang of Highland Colony just glows with activities centered on special family traditions. She usually begins in January to think about the innovation she will use in the decorations she has kept for years.

Feeling that adults get as much pleasure from the red stockings hung for the surprise gifts, Mrs. Lang has designed a stocking for each member of the family. Her daughter Mary Sue, designed one with her father, Atty. Lang, reading a newspaper with his name on the front page. Her mother has one decorated with mistletoe, her special interest.

Felt aprons for the ladies and vests for the men are worn for the Christmas dinner. Each year some new novelty is made — this year it is a decorated felt napkin holder.

Mary Sue, who teaches art at the Rocky River High School, presented her mother with the unusual replicas of the Cratchit family from Dickens' "Christmas Carol." She made the heads from dried apples, and beamed when she told her mother they only cost her 15 cents, which she spent for the buttons — the rest was made from what she could gather about here and there.

Quoting Mrs. Lang about what Christmas means to her, she says "You Can Give Without Loving, But You Cannot Love Without Giving."

AN OLD UMBRELLA frame, slightly opened and intertwined with net was made into a novel tree by Mrs. Carol Walton of Macrum St. Bells, attached to the bottom of the ribs and at the top, completed the novelty.

With plenty of baby food jars emptied by daughter, Heather, she has made lovely decorations, filling them with melted old candles and decorating the outside with ornaments and sequins. Other have just a little wax and contain holiday scenes.

She has made an attractive white felt tree skirt, sequined and fringed. Carol inherits the talent of handwork from her mother, the late Mrs. Mildred Pittenger, who as director of Girl Scouts, kept all kinds of projects going. Mrs. Pittenger made a table cloth of red net over red satin trimmed in gold rick rack. Each felt ornament contained a different scene. She also covered the styrofoam ball with a pot scraper resulting in a novel ornament.

Mrs. Kay Blankenship of Pennsylvania Ave. not only makes decorations at Christmas, but is kept in circles most of the year working on hand projects. One of the most attractive items is a large size net tree glamorized with sequins and sparkle.

AMONG HER other unusual trees are one made from macaroni, glued on a cardboard form and sprayed with gilt, and another made from strips of velour paper faced with gold paper. Her novelty tray is made from aluminum pie plates placed in tiers and her door decoration consists of individual leaves cut and stapled to a cardboard form.

She has found all kinds of uses for commercial plastic containers. Mrs. Blankenship experiments with ways to wrap unusual gifts, such as making a Santa to cover a bottle of perfume and a house for another odd shaped item. Old newspaper can be utilized in making a snowman which can be covered with foil.

Late in the summer, Mrs. Ruth Ralston of Harvey Ave.

A white nylon net tree with small ornament balls is the Christmas decoration keynote in the home of Mrs. Joseph Blankenship of Pennsylvania Ave.

was gathering milk pods for a yule tree which causes much comment. She attached them to the form while they were green and after they dried out, they took another shape.

With some gold spray and a few ornaments, the finished product makes a perfect centerpiece. Sprayed pine cones are used at the base. Other novel trees were made from vegetable scrubbers sprayed with white snow and decorated.

HER CROCHETED Santa Claus door knob cover gives the perfect welcome at the holidays. Mrs. Ralston delights in using various ideas in making candles in all types of containers, with glitter used as the final touches. A suspended wicker basket, filled with colorful Christmas novelties, adds holiday appeal in her diningroom.

Imagine using the face of Wilma Flintstone, the TV character, for a pot holder. Mrs. Laura Mae Smith of the Fredericktown Rd., uses novel approaches to her Christmas decorations and gifts.

She made calendars using a cat she sketched from a 1917 party item. Her bird cages, from pipe cleaners, make lovely gifts.

For the ladies, she makes felt faces for powder puffs, gardenias from marshmallows crocheted cups and saucers and curler bags. Mrs. Smith sews dogs and cats on house slippers made from turkish toweling, and converts empty coffee tins into drums and cookie jars.

Children enjoy her unusual Christmas cards. Her hand work is well known for she holds membership in many local lodges.

Now, the ideas are here. Get the necessary equipment, and let's see what you can make for Christmas!

Gilded milkweed pods were used to form this unique tree by Mrs. Elmer Ralston of Harvey Ave.

Mrs. Francis Lang of Highland Colony displays dried apple figures from Dickens' "Christmas Carol," made by her daughter, Mary Sue.

A variety of Christmas decorations has been made by Mrs. Jay Smith of Fredericktown Rd.

An umbrella covered with red nylon provides a gay Yuletide highlight for Mrs. Larry Walton of Macrum St. and daughter, Heather.

The Lighter Side

A young old-timer can be defined loosely as a member of the generation born immediately after World War I who lived through the Great Depression of the 1930's as a youngster, fought in World War II and now is thinking seriously of bi-focals and worrying about a receding hair-line.

For that generation, memories of the "good old days" date back to the late 1920's and through the 1930's—a time of youth and hope despite a shortage of ready cash.

Things called modern then look almost primitive by today's standards. The mid-1930's saw the introduction of the first streamlined merchandise and cars. And soon "streamlined" became a catch-phrase on a par with today's "orbit" and "atomic".

THERE WAS NO ready cash jingling in the pockets of the youth of the 1930's. Any recreation or time-killing activity was stymied with that realization.

But it was an era of fads. The first coin-operated marble boards, primitive devices, made their appearance. And jigsaw puzzles became such a craze that they were rented by the day, just as in libraries. The electric refrigerator did not become a fixture in most American kitchens until the late 1930's, when the country started to pull out of the depression.

So those are some of the things remembered by the young old-timers, now paunchy around the middle and grandparents — or imminently on verge.

Here are some other things that generation remembers: If a dealer carried four brands of cigarettes — Camel, Lucky Strike, Chesterfield and Old Gold — he could supply 99 per cent of the smoking public. A filter was something you put in your furnace.

A youth 6 foot 6 or over would have been receiving job offers from carnival freak shows, not playing high school basketball under the nickname, "Shorty."

When one of the Big Three auto manufacturers brought out a V-8 engine that developed 85 horsepower, it was regarded as the ultimate.

or a heater in his car bought it at an auto supply store and installed it by the sweat of his own brow — and the confusion of the car's wiring system.

When a prospective employee asked about wages and the employer replied $5, he meant a day — not an hour.

Blue Cross and Blue Shield would have been mistaken for the name of a fraternal order.

A draft, sometimes spelled draught, was something that one felt around a window a clerk smiled and said "Thank you!" he meant it.

Soft water came out of the well or the rain barrel. And housewives used a thing called soap chips (or flakes) for the laundry.

Nobody chopped off his toes with a lawnmower or mangled his fingers in a snowblower.

Adults got their radio news from Lowell Thomas, laughed at Amos 'n' Andy and wrinkled brows thoughtfully at Town Hall Tonight; youngsters listened to Tom Mix and His Straight Shooters, the Green Hornet and Jack Armstrong, the All-American Boy; the teen-age generation danced to the music of Shep Fields and his Rippling Rhythm or cocked an ear to Kay Kyser and his Kollege of Musical Knowledge.

FROZEN FOOD was something that got left in the window box by mistake when the temperature dipped.

Uranium was the mineral the potters used to help produce certain reddish hues.

A dollar bill was half again as large as today's currency, literally and figuratively.

For 25 cents a youngster could go to the movies, get a bag of popcorn, buy a soft drink and come home with 10 cents change.

When the grocery store clerk banged the cash register six or eight times, handed over a sack of groceries and said "Ninety," he meant cents, not dollars.

A liberal was one who advocated starchy-eyed schemes like Social Security and unemployment compensation; a conservative argued for a return to the 12-hour day, the gold standard and 8 per cent interest.

Some thought it the work of the devil and raged at the extravagant bursts of speed and recklessness it might induce.

USED CAR LOTS were full of Model A's at $10 and $15, just about enough to buy one tire today for one of the vintage autos, a sleek and proud "antique" with a special license plate, by golly!

Convertible tops were hand-operated and muscles also supplied the power for steering, brakes and windows. Roadsters were still around and the rumble seat was just going out of style.

Anyone who wanted a radio

A jeep was an odd-looking character in the cartoon strip Thimble Theater drawn by O. Segar.

A hamburger was a hamburger (10 cents) and a submarine was an undersea war vessel.

A GROCERY WAS a place where the customer read off a list and a fast-working clerk behind the counter stacked the items up on the counter, sometimes reaching to the top shelves with a clawlike device at the end of a long pole.

ment" injunction may be obtained or either party may start a lawsuit to settle the problems which the temporary injunction has cleared for the moment.

If the court grants an injunction, it must be served on the defendant to be effective. Then if he disobeys the order, he is disobeying the court and is subject to a fine or a jail term for "contempt of court."

Medical Tips

Glaucoma causes more than 12 per cent of all blindness, and it is estimated that one out of every 50 persons over the age of 40 has the disease.

There are at least a million Americans who have this serious sight-robbing disease and don't know it.

Glaucoma is produced by a buildup in pressure in the eye accompanied by an imbalance and impairment of the flow of eye fluids. What causes this increase in pressure is a question still engaging eye specialists.

Glaucoma seldom warns of its presence. Usually there is no pain, and often the disease is in an advanced state before the patient becomes aware of impairment in side vision. Occasionally there may be an acute attack, causing severe pain.

Glaucoma can be detected during physical examination by measuring the tension in the eyeball with a simple painless test. If discovered in early stages, progress of the disease usually can be checked and the remaining vision saved through treatment. Once it has been discovered, glaucoma can be controlled by regular use of eye drops to reduce pressure, or, sometimes, by surgery.

The doctor can look for the four danger signs of glaucoma — (1) gradual or sudden loss of side vision; (2) frequent but unsatisfactory changes in glasses; (3) blurred or foggy vision; (4) rainbow like halos around lights.

Anyone of any age can get glaucoma, but it is more common among persons over 40. Eye exercises are useless in treatment. Heredity may be involved, in that doctors have found that patients are more likely to get glaucoma if either parent or a brother or sister has had the disease.

Medical eye specialists recommend that everyone past 40 have an eye examination at least every two years by someone medically trained to diagnose glaucoma. Those who have glaucoma in the family should be examined each year.

Area Rock Bridge Crosses Creek

Columbiana County's natural stone bridge may not have the height or fame of its counterpart in Virginia, but it is unique and worthy of a visit by district residents.

The section of rock, formed by erosion, extends across a small Middleton Township run on the east side of Beaver Creek's north fork, east of Pancake's Hill and near the Pennsylvania state line.

Atty. William H. Vodrey Jr. of East Liverpool, vice president of the Ohio Historical Society, is shown standing on the rock span which measures about 3½ feet wide, a foot thick and about 16 feet long.

The sandstone bridge was apparently formed many centuries ago when a stream flowed over the lip of the ledge beneath which there was a cave. The rear of the cave probably collapsed upstream from the ledge, leaving a section of the roof of the cave still over the stream which now flowed beneath the ledge instead of over it.

The rock debris from the collapse washed and eroded away, leaving the span as it is today.

The formation can be reached along the Pancake - Salem Church by crossing the metal bridge over Beaver Creek and passing beneath the underpass of the Montour Railroad. An abandoned road leads from the highway just east of the underpass to the left — or north — across an old stone arch bridge over the run, and up hill.

The natural formation is about 400 yards up the ravine, overlooked by a number of oak trees and tall witch hazel bushes.

About half way up the hill is the old stone quarry from which the stones for the arch bridge were cut.

Stamps In The News

The Republic of Zambia, formerly Northern Rhodesia, has just achieved independence and has issued its first postage stamps.

The 3 pence shows Dr. K. D. Kaunda, president of Zambia, looking up at the Eastern Cataract of the mighty Victoria Falls. The 6 pence depicts the College of Further Education symbolizing the country's desire to provide an education for all the people.

a Barotse woman clasping her hands in traditional greeting.

Zambia is the ninth African dependency of Britain to emerge as an independent sovereign state. The position of Barotseland within independent Northern Rhodesia was settled by an agreement between the prime minister of Northern Rhodesia and the Litunga of Barotseland in May 1964.

The British connection with Zambia began over 100 years ago with David Livingstone's journeys to the upper Zambezi. Cecil Rhodes's British South Africa Company laid the foundations of the orderly administration of the country at the end of the 19th Century. The educational and medical work of the missionaries contributed much to the advancement of the populace.

Paraguay has issued a series of "Space" stamps honoring Werner von Braun, spacecraft and the late U. S. President John F. Kennedy. There are five stamps for regular mail and three airmails. Souvenir sheets featuring these three types of stamps were also issued with appropriate inscriptions and dates noted.

Vatican City has issued a new set of stamps honoring the Red Cross. The design is the same for all three values — 10 lire, 30 lire and 300 lire. Illustrated is a Good Samaritan aiding a wayfarer. The designer, Emilio Greco, conceived his drawing from an inscription in St. Luke, Chapter 10, verse 33. Written across the top of the stamps is "Samaritanus Misericordia Motus Est." Below is "Luc. X. 33" identifying the biblical text.

Thailand has announced the issuance of four new stamps dedicated to "Letter Writing Week." One stamp shows a hand, a pigeon and a world globe. A second features a world map, a pen and pencil. The third illustrates two girls, letters, pigeons and a map. The fourth depicts a hand holding a pen.

Election Complexity

Electoral College Meets For Presidential Vote

Twenty-six persons elected Nov. 3, although their names did not appear on the ballot, will meet at the State Capitol in Columbus Monday in another of the complicated steps followed every four years in choosing a new president and vice president.

They're the members of the Electoral College named by Ohioans at the general election with the unwritten understanding that they will cast their votes for Lyndon B. Johnson for president and Hubert H. Humphrey for vice president.

Certified and sealed lists of the votes cast at Columbus will be mailed to the president of the U. S. Senate. Along with those from all the other states, they will be opened and read in the presence of the members of the Senate and House of Representatives at a Joint session on Jan. 6.

ALTHOUGH THE names of the presidential and vice presidential candidates appeared on the ballots on which Ohioans voted Nov. 3, they actually were casting votes for the anonymous 26 as members of the Electoral College.

In former elections, the names of all the electors were printed on the ballot. That complicated the task of tabulating election returns enormously, as precinct crews were required to count individual votes for each of the 26.

The number of members of the Electoral College in each state is determined by the number of congressmen and U. S. Senators who represent it.

The Ohio Republicans and Democrats nominated candidates for president and vice president was a vote for the 26 Democratic aspirants for presidential elector. That slate of 26 was elected, of course, but not legally, to vote for Johnson and Humphrey at the Electoral College meeting in Columbus.

Secretary of State Ted W. Brown already has notified the electors of their election and the date of the meeting at Columbus, which is fixed by federal law.

Monday morning, the presidential electors will meet in the chamber of the House of Representatives in the State Capitol. Ohio law empowers them to make appointments to fill any vacancies in their ranks. So if for any reason there are not 26 present, the remaining electors will fill the vacancies.

THE ELECTORS generally proceed first to pass several resolutions, often commemorating distinguished Ohioans who served as electors in the past.

When the electors come to the actual balloting, they will vote on paper ballots provided for them by the secretary of state. They will cast two ballots—one for president and one for vice president.

When the balloting is finished, certificates will be signed telling who received Ohio's 26 electoral votes. The certificates will be forwarded to Washington to be read at the joint session of Congress.

The Electoral College has survived since the foundation of the nation, despite more than 100 attempts to alter or abolish it. In the elections of 1824, 1876 and 1888, the presidential candidate receiving the largest popular vote failed to win a majority of the electoral votes.

The District of Columbia was permitted to vote on the president and vice president for the first time in 1964.

The long-established custom, members of the Electoral College vote for their party's nominee for president, thus giving their state's electoral votes to him. But the Constitution does not bind them to vote for a particular man. The only constitutional requirement is that at least one of the persons each elector votes for shall not be an inhabitant of that elector's home state.

You And The Law

Sometimes you see newspaper stories telling how various courts have issued "injunctions" to protect the owner of a patent from infringement, to stop someone from erecting a building which would be a hazard to the neighbors, or to prevent some other type of activity which might harm one or more persons.

The injunction, one of several so-called special legal remedies, got its name because in the old days the English King commanded ("enjoined") special action when an ordinary court action could not solve a problem at hand. Today it is an order requiring a person (or corporation) to refrain from doing a particular act.

AS A RULE, one would first get a "Temporary Restraining Order" which would stop someone from doing something harmful — such as polluting a stream or annoying the peace of your home. By granting this temporary order the judge preserves the status quo until a hearing has been held to hear both sides of the controversy. Usually, if you want an injunction, your lawyer will take sworn statements into court to show that your grievance is one which could be taken care of only by an injunction.

Often you must put up a bond to make up for any damage you do the other side if the court doesn't see things your way.

After you've made your request, the court arranges to hear both sides. The person requesting the injunction has the burden of establishing, by the strength of his own case, that he is entitled to the injunction. The injunction will not be issued because of the weakness of his adversary's evidence. Because most injunctions deal with immediate problems, the court hears the merits of such a case in a very short time.

AFTER THE temporary injunction is issued, a "perma-

Potters Collapse In 2nd Half, Lose 76-46 To Warren

By BOB DUFFY
Review Sports Editor

The East Liverpool Potters went into a nose dive in the third quarter and didn't pull out until the opening game of the 1964-65 season was far out of reach.

A quick Warren five outscored the Potters, 42-14, in the second half to gain a 76-46 triumph before a first nighter crowd of some 1,200 at Memorial Auditorium Friday night.

The Big 8 Conference defeat goes down as one of the worst suffered at the hands of a Warren team.

THE LOSS also spoiled the debut of Frank Chan, the Potters new head coach who said "it looked to me like a case of the jitters out there. Warren had played two games and we hadn't."

"Their press seemed to bother us and we had too many turnovers. We have a lot of work to do and the boys know it," Chan observed.

The Potters return to action tonight and will attempt to cash in the victory column at Alliance. Game time is 8:30 p.m. The Aviators also were losing last night to Akron North, 50-44. Alliance now stands 0-2.

FOLLOWING the game, Chan

Only scoring 14 points in the second half, East Liverpool's shooting was way off the mark as the Potters went through the third period making only 2 of 19 attempts.

Chan tried various combinations in the second half, but nothing seemed to work for the Potters.

HE SHOWED 8 goals in 17 attempts and was the only Potter to finish in the double figures.

East Liverpool's other veteran Frank Taylor contributed only five points and fouled out of the game with 3:49 remaining in the third quarter. Taylor, the best jumper on the squad, did contribute some help on the backboards while making only two of 10 field goal tries.

VERN SMITH, a sophomore, added five points and ran into some early foul trouble.

Terry Lawrence, tallest member of the squad at 6-4, was slowed with an ankle injury but started last night's contest.

Warren was paced by a husky junior in Jim Provitt, 6-2, pivot who was the game's top scorer with 20 points. Provitt kept the Warren five going in the first half when he scored 17 of his total.

Roberts, Horger Spark Beavers To Win Over N. Lima

Junior Larry Roberts and Dennis Horger combined for 44 points to send Beaver Local to its second straight victory in three games, 67-61 win over North Lima, Friday night on the Beavers' floor.

Coach John Pape's squad battled to a 33-28 lead at halftime but North Lima bounced back in the third quarter and at one time moved in front 37-36.

A FINE third quarter by Roberts plus a whirlwind finish by Horger proved the important factors.

After falling behind in the third stanza, Roberts and rebounding star Dick Rudibaugh hit on successive goals to put the Beavers in front 40-37 for a lead they never lost.

Roberts scored 10 of his 24 points in the third quarter while Horger ripped the nets for 10 markers in the fourth period.

Wellsville Stops Lisbon For 1st

Wellsville's Tigers came on strong in the second half, shooting 57 per cent, to turn in their first victory of the season by humbling Lisbon, 68-62, Friday night on the Beacom Memorial floor.

The victory was the first in three games for Coach Jack McDevitt's Tigers, while the game served as the opener for Lisbon.

DICK CALL led the third period charge when he dropped in 11 of his 17 points in that quarter.

Tigers Rally In 2nd Half

Wellsville led 28-26 at halftime but scored nine straight points early in the third period to push the margin to 37-26. Dick Bratt scored two field goals, Jeff MacLean one and Call a bucket and a foul in the flurry that put the game on ice for the Tigers, who had upped the count to 51-40 going into the final stanza.

WELLSVILLE wound up shooting 41 per cent for the game with the third and fourth quarters its finest moments.

The first half was a see-saw affair with the score tied seven times in the opening period.

Three Tigers made their way to the double figures with Call's 17 points leading the pack. Mac-Lean chipped in with 15 and Dick Murray a junior added 14.

TIM BUCHER and Don Blair shared the point honors for Lisbon with each collecting 19 markers.

Wellsville's reserve squad rolled to its second victory, 53-36, over the Blue Devil jayvees.

Bob Morehead set the scoring pace with 11 with Tod Weekley and Paul Hood adding 10 each. Dave Longston and Rick Kennedy scored seven apiece for Lisbon.

Beaver Local Cager Plans To Enroll Here

Ben Springer, a 6-5 cager from Beaver Local, is moving to East Liverpool and plans to enroll in school here Monday. No reason was given for Springer's move. He would be eligible to play for East Liverpool in next Friday's game with Midland, Potter coach Frank Chan said. Springer was a regular for Beaver Local and played in its first two games. He did not play Friday night in the Beavers' victory over North Lima.

Brook, battled to a 42-42 tie at the end of regulation time by staging a strong comeback in the fourth quarter.

The first overtime wound up 46-46 with Hauer finally deciding the issue.

In regulation time, Hauer's foul had put Leetonia in front 42-40 with nine seconds to go but Greenford stormed back to tie it at 42-42 with five seconds showing.

Dayton Grid Coach Quits

DAYTON, Ohio — Pete Ankey, hired to bolster the University of Dayton's sagging football program, resigned suddenly today.

Ankey, 32, said in a statement, "The unbelievable amount of time that was necessary in the effort to bring winning football back to Dayton to the exclusion of everything else was the main reason for my action."

Athletic Director Tom Frericks, who announced the resignation in a hastily-called news conference, said Dayton has no intention of giving up football and will start looking immediately for a new coach.

Ankey had one year left on a three-year contract. He had instituted a strong recruiting program and two-thirds of this season's team, which posted the Flyers' best record since 1959, will return next year.

Dayton said Ankey's assistants would remain on the staff.

Dayton had won only five games in three years, while losing 25, when Ankey was hired from Canton's McKinley High School to rejuvenate the program. His teams won four games, lost 14 and tied two in two years, but posted a 3-7 record this season.

Southern Wins 3rd Close Contest

Hustle is the name of the game, the way Southern Local plays it and the aggressive Indians managed to win their third straight one-point decision, 51-50, Friday night at Stanton Local.

Two foul shots by Glenn Stewart with 28 seconds remaining in the contest finally proved the difference. The charity tosses put Coach Al Gironi's club in front 51-48 and Ken Russell later scored for Stanton with 10 seconds left to make it 51-50 before Southern ran out the clock.

The heartbreaker was the third loss in a row for Coach Harry Diehl's Stanton five, while unbeaten Southern posted win No. 3.

Gironi praised the work of Mervin Jones, a senior, who entered the game in the third quarter and made some timely steals. He scored six points in the third period to push Southern into the lead.

Stanton led at halftime, 23-19 and Southern was behind by six points at one time in the third quarter but managed to come out on top when the period ended holding a 37-34 edge.

Stewart led Southern with 15 points while Jones contributed 12 big points.

OFF THE RECORD

How Can I?

By ANNE ASHLEY

Q. — How can I repair a hole broken in a trunk panel?

A. — Cut a sheet - steel patch large enough for rivets to go into the sound material around the break. Smooth the edges of this steel patch, or bend them slightly in, and put the patch on the outside of the trunk panel. House paint or light spar varnish between the panel and the patch will add greater strength to the joint and make it water - resistant.

Q. — How can I prevent Angora sweaters, gloves and scarves from shedding so much?

A. — Try keeping your Angora in your refrigerator between wearings. Works wonders.

Q. — How can I avoid the binding and sticking of my sa as I attempt to make a lon, cut through a piece of wood, especially when the wood is damp or green?

A. — You can eliminate this binding if you'll follow your saw cut closely with a table knife inserted in the cut. This will keep the cut open enough to permit free movement of your saw.

Q.—How can I remove very stubborn black soot and smoke marks from a brick fireplace?

A.—Try giving the facing an entirely new surface. Use a carborundum block and rub firmly all over the surface of the stained bricks. If the contrast between these bricks and the rest of the facing is very marked, go over the other bricks lightly to give them all the same tone.

Q. — How can I insure my cooked cauliflower arriving at the table looking whiter?

A. — By adding a piece of emon during its cooking process. And cook the cauliflower only until tender. Overcooking tends to discolor it.

A Junior Editors Quiz About TRANSISTOR

QUESTION: What is a transistor and how does it work?

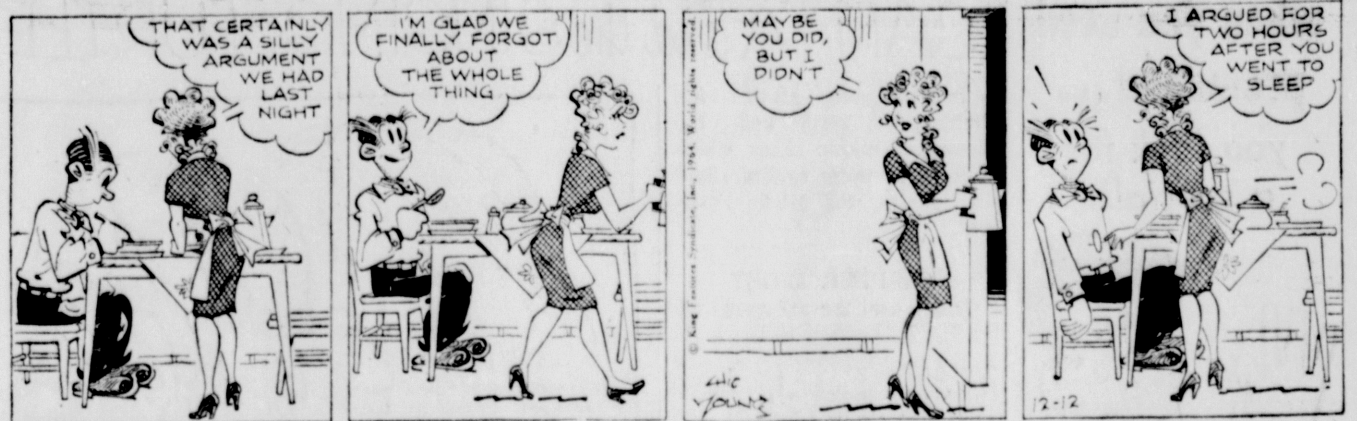

ANSWER: To understand transistors, think of electrons as very small electrical particles connected with a larger atom. Some electrons can flow, or move from one atom to another. When this happens, there is an electric current; lights and electric appliances such as radios can be put to work. The flow of electrons can be controlled in various ways. To do this, larger radios have a number of vacuum tubes from which air has been removed so the atoms of the air will not disturb the electron flow. It is then easier to control them, such as using magnets to turn or deflect the stream of electrons, or to make them go faster, which will result in amplifying the electric signal so sound can be produced.

A transistor is another way of doing these same various jobs, but it is very much smaller, which is why the tiny radio in the picture is possible. Transistors use much less power than vacuum tubes and create little heat. Inside a transistor are layers of materials such as germanium and silicon, called semi-conductors. Certain impurities are deliberately added, which has the effect of changing the electric current passing through in just the way which is needed.

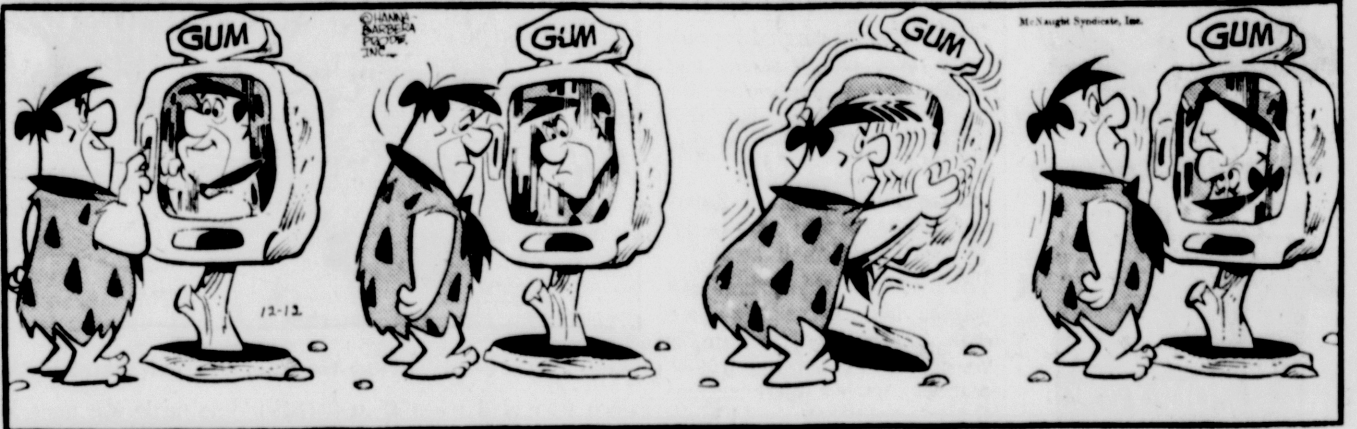

FOR YOU TO DO: Have you a scrapbook on the space age? If not, start one and paste in everything you can find on such things as transistors, satellites, computers and space capsules.

Addy DeGelle of Baltimore, Md., wins today's combined prize of Compton's Illustrated Science Dictionary plus $10 cash for this question. Mail yours on a postcard to Junior Editors in care of The Review and you may win the weekly grand prize of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia.

SANTA and the SINGING TURTLE

Tweedleknies gives the Prince, the turtle and the Snowman magic shoes which will carry them to Fairyland in time for the Music Festival.

CHAPTER EIGHT

George and the Snowman and the Prince hurried to the forest on the east side of Santa Land. It was a long walk, but Patrick Tweedleknies had warned them not to put on the magic shoes until they reached the forest.

The Snowman carried his new broom over one shoulder and his fine shoes slung over the other. His tall silk hat was cocked over his new emerald eye.

"Suppose it is hot in Fairyland," he thought anxiously. "If it is I shall melt away!"

This thought made him sad because he felt healthy and whole for the first time in his life. He didn't tell his friends what was on his mind because he was afraid they would make him stay behind.

GEORGE probably would not have heard him anyway. It had been a whole day since the turtle had practiced singing and he was trying to make up for it now.

"Do re me fa so la te do," he sang as he plodded along. First in C, then F sharp, then B flat and so forth. It was very trying to listen to and the "Good gracious!" cried George. "I feel weightless."

Prince was glad when they finally reached the forest and stopped to put on the shoes

Tweedleknies had given them. This was not an easy task. The Snowman was so large and ungainly he could hardly reach his feet, much less put on shoes. The turtle's feet were so tiny he couldn't keep his shoes on.

The Prince put his shoes on a rock and bent over the Snowman's huge feet. He shoved and pushed and tugged and finally the Snowman's shoes were on. "Hey! Look at me!" exclaimed the Snowman. "I'm walking on air!"

He took one step, then another, and suddenly his legs went zip, zip, zip like a pair of scissors and swish! the Snowman was gone.

"Oh, dear," wailed the turtle struggling with his shoes. "We should stay together!"

"Don't worry, we'll catch up," said the Prince. He slipped the four little shoes on George's feet and tied the laces tight.

"Good gracious!" cried George. "I feel weightless!" He waddled three steps and then all four feet began to churn and swish! the turtle was gone, crying "Hurry, Prince!" as he sped away.

THE PRINCE hurried to put on his own shoes, but when he went to the rock where he had left them they were gone. He turned the rock over and kicked up the snow. There was no sign of the shoes.

Then the Prince saw footprints leading into the forest. "Could the shoes have gone off by themselves?" he wondered. Frantically he followed the tracks. On and on they went, deep into the forest. The Prince began to run. His heart pounded. It was growing dark. Soon he would not be able to see the tracks.

He stumbled over fallen logs and crashed into trees. A low limb swept the crown from his head. He left it where it fell and rushed on.

When he felt he could not run another step, the tracks came to an end. The Prince found himself in a small clearing in the woods. Standing waiting for him was Womp, the man witch, grinning crookedly and holding the magic shoes in his hands.

43 Agencies Will Share In Beaver United Funds

The United Funds of Beaver County announced today the allocations of proceeds from its recent campaign, following a Board of Directors meeting Wednesday in the Penn Beaver Hotel, Rochester.

Almost 93 per cent of the campaign which produced $856,180 will be used for 1965 allocations and shrinkage reserve to guarantee allocation payments to the 43 voluntary health, welfare and character building agencies affiliated with the Fund.

The 1965 countywide allocations are the result of individual meetings and budget review with each of the agencies. Based upon the agencies' anticipated needs, services provided and funds available, the allocations to the 27 county-wide agencies follows:

Aliquippa, Beaver Valley, Providence and Rochester Hospitals for indigent care, $80,000; Beaver County Red Cross Chapter, $83,000; Western Pennsylvania Chapter of Arthritis & Rheumatism Foundation, $6,500; Beaver County Cancer Society, $36,200; Beaver County Branch of the Pennsylvania Association for the Blind, $33,800; Allegheny Council of Boy Scouts, $46,500; Catholic Social Service, $40,934.

Children's Aid and Family Service, $35,625; Beaver County Children's Home, $16,000; Beaver-Castle Girl Scout Council, $52,750; Health and Welfare Council, $20,000; Beaver County Heart Association, $10,000 preliminary and an additional $11,700 pending approval of major 1965 program; Beaver County Home for the Aged, $8,500; Beaver County Mental Health Society, $12,500; Beaver County Mental Hygiene Clinic, $35,700; Multiple Sclerosis Society of Western Pennsylvania, $7,700.

Pennsylvania Citizens Council, $500; Beaver County Chapter of Pennsylvania Association for Retarded Children, $28,900; Salvation Army, $56,700; Travelers Aid Society, $300; United Community Funds and Councils of America, $3,030; United Service Organizations (USO), $5,000; Beaver Valley Young Men's Christian Association (YMCA), $20,880; Pennsylvania State Young Men's Christian Association (YMCA), $18,500; Reserve to guarantee allocation payments in the event of uncollectible pledges due to deaths, layoffs, etc., $35,000.

The 1965 county agency allocations total $716,490 or a 4.1 per cent increase over 1964 allocations of $688,217. They represent 95 per cent of agency requests. Approximately 99 per cent of eligible voluntary agencies in Beaver County are part of the United Fund. In almost every case, United Fund allocations account for a major portion of their operating budget.

The County Fund also approved a total of $59,230 for 1965 allocations to and a special study for the 16 local area affiliated agencies.

The local area agencies and the recommended total allocation sum for each area follows:

Aliquippa Area, $12,500 for allocations to the Aliquippa Central Relief, B. F. Jones Library, Griffith Heights Recreation Association, Hopewell Township Recreation Association and Racoon Boys Club.

The Ambridge Area, $11,740 for allocations to Ambridge Recreation Center, Baden Library, Laughlin Memorial Library and Ambridge Veterans Service Center.

Beaver Area, $8,500 for Beaver Memorial Library.

Midland Area, $1,000 for Midland Hot Stove Recreation Association.

Rochester Area, $5,000 for Rochester Area Improvement and Development Association and Upper Beaver Valley Area, $11,890 for Beaver Falls Veterans Service Center and New Brighton Veterans Service Center. A sum of $2,500 was provided for an independent study of the various methods of financing the local agency operations. The Health and Welfare Council is seeking experts to conduct this study.

The fifth annual meeting of the United Funds of Beaver County was scheduled for Feb. 10.

Concrete generally is considered the world's most versatile building material.

Butter has been a food since the beginning of recorded history. First mentioned in the Book of Genesis, it was used as a food and a medicine, as an ointment and as a fuel for burning in lamps. Butter was made from the milk of sheep and goats, and later from cows. One of the first means of manufacturing it consisted of placing cream in skin pouches and hanging these over the backs of trotting horses.

Christmas Musical Given At Meeting Of Midland PTA

The choir and orchestra, under the direction of Miss Despeina Gagianas, music instructor, presented a Christmas musical program, at a meeting of the 4th St. Parent-Teacher Association Thursday afternoon at the Midland School.

Guests were Supt. Edgar Richards, William Lohr, a principal in the Beaver Area School system and a former sixth grade teacher at the 4th St. building, and John Randolph, a new fifth grade instructor. John Wilson, elementary principal, introduced the new teacher.

Mrs. George Studen, president, reported on the recent Book Fair sponsored by Midland's three PTA's. Proceeds will be used to purchase books for the three elementary schools. The teachers will select the books, she said.

The unit will prepare Christmas food baskets for needy families and the deadline for turning in items is Friday.

Mrs. James Adkins, treasurer, announced the Christmas treats will be distributed to the pupils Dec. 22. The tree was decorated Tuesday by a committee comprised of Mrs. Vivian Burks, chairman, Mrs. Gill Clark, Mrs. Barbara Dickey and Mrs. George Tepovich. Mrs. Nick Katich led devotions. Mrs. Mark Yandrich gave the secretary's report in the absence of Mrs. James Wilson, and Mrs. Mike Prodonovich, treasurer, presented a report.

The president announced that most parents present represented Miss Catherine Rutherford's fifth grade.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Robert Reighard and committee. The centerpiece was an arrangement of pines and Christmas decorations. The next meeting will be held Jan. 14.
